Dear Families,

I hope this communication finds you and your families well. We sure miss seeing all of the students in classrooms, on the playground, and engaged in learning here at RRVCS.

Governor Grisham announced today that all New Mexico schools will be closed for the remainder of the academic school year. With that said, know that the teachers and I have been working since the initial closing to prepare for the possibility of this moment. Teachers are collaborating and identifying online platforms for continued learning, and we will soon meet as a team to put in place the official Continuous Learning Plan (CLP) presented by the NMPED. Conversations around the CLP will include considerations for those who do not have internet access or technology needed for online learning. Rest assured, your child(ren) are familiar with the technology and platforms, because the teachers were utilizing them while the students were learning in their classrooms.

Breakfast, lunch, and snack will continue through the scheduled academic school year. Please reach out to your child(ren)s teacher if you need additional food and we will help meet your needs. The Questa food pantry, Alta Vista, and RRVCS are all here to help our community during this difficult time. If you are receiving meals from RRVCS and would like to continue to do so, you do not need to do anything. However, if you are not receiving meals and need them or know someone who does, please let us know. A message to the teacher or a voicemail at Red River Valley Charter School is all that is needed.

Updates will follow via email, Facebook-Red River Valley Charter School, our website www.redrivervalleycs.org, phone calls, letters, and at food pick up and drop off.

Be Well,
Kimberly Ritterhouse
School Administrator
